What is happening to the model WHS Regulations?

A Modified Version To Be Developed For WA
We will be using the same general rules -

- Reduce red tape and maintain compliance costs at an acceptable level.

  (Ministerial statement – 12 August 2014)

- Keep modification to a minimal amount.
The Outcome

The model WHS Laws intend to provide essentially the same outcome as our current laws but there will be some changes even with the WA specific modifications.

Regulations that we have been accustomed to having may not be present in the same form and in some instances those regulations may not be present with content shifted to codes.

The Transition

- Transitional principles have been developed as part of the model WHS laws package.

- Generally, once the laws are in force, where there is a change there is an ‘allowance’ of time for workplaces to make the change.
Next steps.

- The WA consultation process: submit any comments you have on the Green Bill to WorkSafe.

  WHSGreenBill@commerce.wa.gov.au

- Model WHS Regulations process.

- Government to make a decision on the best workplace safety laws for this state.
